

Environmental Health Training in Emergency Response February 28-29, 2012, Bakersfield

This course is based on material created by the Center for Disease Control and Prevention National Center for Environmental Health and hosted by Kern County Department of Public Health Services and the California Department of Public Health. The course will be held from 8am-5pm on 2/28/12 and 2/29/12.

The purpose of this course is to increase the level of emergency preparedness and response of public and environmental health practitioners by providing the necessary knowledge and skills to address the environmental health impacts of disasters. Topics covered will include disaster-related food and drinking water supply, health and safety, shelter sanitation, solid and hazardous waste handling, community health, vector control, and wastewater.

This 2-day course will take place 8:00 am - 5 pm on both days. The course is free and offers 16 hours of continuing education for Registered Environmental Health Specialists made available through the California Environmental Health Association (CEHA). No lunch is provided.

The course will take place at the Kern County Public Health Services Department Hans E. Einstein Education Center 1800 Mt. Vernon Ave. Bakersfield, CA 93306. Participants are encouraged to arrive on time and ride share if possible as parking is limited.

If you have a Disaster Field Manual for Environmental Health Specialists please bring it to class, it will be a useful reference.
