

California Department of Public Health Preventive Medicine Residents 12-13

Dr. Julia Logan is currently in her second training year (PGY3) with the program. She completed her PGY2 year through UC Davis, obtaining a Masters in Public Health degree and clinical experience with the CommuniCare Clinic in Davis. Prior to joining the Preventive Medicine Residency, Julia graduated from Northwestern University with a degree in American Culture, and received her MD from Drexel University College of Medicine. After completing her residency training in Family Medicine, she practiced as a primary care physician within a group practice in Sacramento, CA. Her area of focus is in addressing health inequities in colorectal cancer prevention and the quality of care in Medi-Cal.

Stipend and tuition supported by a grant awarded to the Preventive Medicine Residency Program and the University of California, Davis, by the U.S. Health Resources and Services Administration.

Preceptors - Dr. Olivia Kasirye and Dr. Neal Kohatsu