PRE-APPLICATION WORKSHOPS

CDC CAPACITY BUILDING ASSISTANCE (CBA)
GRANT WRITING TRAINING SERIES

The Grant Writing Training Series is a two-day training that will provide an overview and the fundamentals of grant writing for the public and private sectors. This grant writing training series is a joint collaboration between the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) and six Capacity Building Assistance providers funded under PS 14-1403, namely, Asian Pacific Islander American Health Forum, JSI Research Training Institute, Inc., Latino Commission on AIDS, National Community Health Partners, National Minority AIDS Council, and PROCEED, Inc. in support of pre-application technical assistance. The tools, exercises, feedback, and recommendations from facilitators in these trainings will provide value to the novice and the experienced grant writer when responding to funding opportunity announcements.

Upon completion of training, participants will be able to:

- Understand and identify the basic structure and key elements of a grant proposal
- Develop a plan for conceptualizing, writing, reviewing, and evaluating your grant application
- Learn how to develop and write SMART goals and objectives
- Develop an appropriate budget narrative and justification
- Discuss strategies for an effective grant writing process
