NIOSH Website Showcases States' Health & Safety Publications

- Ever wonder which states track work-related heat illness or address it in different industries?
- Want to search OHB's 800 publications by keyword or browse them by language, industry, or health condition?
- Looking for data on safety hazards in a specific industry from other health or labor departments?

Check out the State-based Occupational Health Surveillance Clearinghouse!

CDC's National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health or NIOSH supports California and other state health departments and universities to track and study work-related injuries and illnesses. NIOSH set up the Clearinghouse to promote public access to publications from over 25 states, including thousands of educational materials, data and case reports, studies, investigations, articles, and more.

You'll find publications on traumatic injury, musculoskeletal disorders, toxic exposures, health disparities, and other cross-cutting health and safety issues.
