WIC-Based Dietetic Internships are accredited by the Commission on Accreditation for Dietetics Education (CADE) of the American Dietetic Association. Part-time community focused internships were developed to meet the growing need for culturally diverse registered dietitians sensitive to the needs of multicultural populations and improving the nutritional health of their communities. Selection criteria encourage work experience in a WIC agency. A strong desire to work for WIC as a Registered Dietitian upon completion of the internship is a definite plus. Part-time flexible employment may be offered with the local WIC agency in conjunction with the internship.

The WIC-based dietetic internship programs in California are identified below.
