Exercise movements ▶

How to do the exercise ▶

Ability levels with suggested repetitions* or time: 4, 6, 8

Exercise name: EGYPTIAN SQUAT

Body area exercised: FULL BODY

Exercise movements: Two illustrations showing the starting position (standing with feet together) and the squatting position (stepping back with one foot, squatting, and returning to start).

How to do the exercise:

- Stand with feet together and hands at your sides.
- Put palms together over head and step to the left into a wide squat.
- Step back to starting position.
- Repetitions should be based on comfort level, then switch sides.

Note: Do not allow knees to go forward over toes during the squat.

Wild Cards are included to mix up your routine.

* A "repetition" is to do a movement from the start position to the end position. For example, one repetition of a squat would be from the standing position, down to the squat position, and back up to the standing position. Do several repetitions to keep muscles on all sides of your body in balance.

Balance Calories

- Enjoy your food, but eat less.
- Don't eat big servings.

Eat More of These Foods

- Make half your plate fruits and vegetables.
- Drink fat free or lowfat milk.

Eat Less of These Foods

- Compare the sodium in foods like soup, bread, and frozen meals—pick the foods with the lower number.
- Drink water instead of sugary drinks.

Information Card

Fruits and Vegetables

Fruits and vegetables are two food groups that can be eaten every day at every meal. Half your plate should be fruits and vegetables.

What is the difference between a fruit and a vegetable?

- Fruits have seeds in them. Common fruits include apples, pears, and strawberries.
- Vegetables come from the stem, leaf, or root of a plant. Common vegetables include lettuce, carrots, and broccoli.

It is important to eat $3\frac{1}{2}$ to $6\frac{1}{2}$ cups of fruits and vegetables every day. The amount that is right for you depends on your age, gender, and physical activity level. To find out how many cups of fruits and vegetables you and your family members need, go to www.choosemyplate.gov.

See other side

Information Card

How Much?

All fruits and vegetables are measured in cups. How much counts as a cup?

1 whole fruit or vegetable = 1 cup

Examples: apple, orange, tomato, corn on the cob

About the size of a baseball

1 cupped handful of fresh, frozen, or canned fruits or vegetables = $\frac{1}{2}$ cup

Examples: strawberries, baby carrots, broccoli, chopped melon

About the size of $\frac{1}{2}$ a baseball

Information Card

Balancing Act

It is important to have an idea of how many calories you are eating a day and if it is too much or too little. In order to keep a healthy weight, you need to balance the calories that you eat and drink with the calories that you burn by daily physical activities.

If your weight stays the same, you are in balance. If you are gaining weight or losing weight, you are not in balance.

See other side

Information Card

Calories

We all want to know how many calories we should eat to keep healthy and fit. This is a hard number to find because we are all different. There are many things that affect how many calories we need to stay healthy - our age, gender, and how much physical activity we get.

Calories are important because they give us energy to work and play. We burn calories when we don't even know it. We burn calories while breathing, sitting on the couch, and mopping the floor. The more active we are the more calories we burn. The less active we are the fewer calories we burn.

If you are not careful, it is easy to eat too many calories in a day. If this happens regularly, it can lead to weight gain.

Consider this: If you eat just 100 more calories a day than you burn, you will gain about one pound in a month. If this happens every day, you could gain 10-12 pounds in a year.

When people sweat, they lose water through their skin. Sweating helps to cool the body down. If too much water is lost this way, however, you could get dehydrated.

RETHINK YOUR DRINK

Water helps hydrate our muscles. Drink water when doing physical activities. Take a 30-second water break right now.

PLAYING FOR HEALTHY CHOICES

Building good eating habits will help you for a lifetime. You may not see the change right away, but stick with it. Little changes become big changes over time.

FRUITS

Fruits have seeds. Avocados, apples, bananas, and oranges are all fruits. Having a piece of fruit can be a healthy way to taste something sweet. Take a 30-second break right now and name as many fruits as you can.
