POSTPONED

Communicating About Health Equity: Showing the Bigger Picture to Build Healthier Communities

Date: July 17, 2014, 10:00am

Description: How do we make the case for implementing wellness policies, for improving menu selections and marketing of healthier items, for affordable access to fresh and healthy food and all of the other community-wide healthy policy changes we want to see? Berkeley Media Studies Group (BMSG) will review tools to help groups like yours that are working to reframe and effectively communicate the importance of their efforts. Many professionals like you are working on health equity issues, but have a hard time talking about it. This webinar will provide tips and a framework to mobilize your supporters and to bring additional potential allies on board.

During the webinar participants will:

- Discover how to apply a message framework for talking about health equity.
- Learn how to reframe priority issues through a health equity lens and an environmental perspective to promote policy change.
- Understand the key components of a message that cue the environment first, include your values and emphasize solutions.
